DANVILLE. [Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.] MARCH 26, 1877.

A meeting of the Tobacco Association was held Saturday evening to protest against the passage of the bill presented by Mr. Powell, of Franklin county, about the trade in tobacco. Mr. C. G. Holland, Captain Daniel Coleman, and Mr. J. T. Stovall were appointed a committee to draft resolutions expressive of the opinions of the members, and soon presented a series of resolutions. which were unanimously adopted. The substance of the resolutions is this: That the provisions of the bill, if left applicable to the Danville warehouses, will break up the trade in tobacco at Danville and bring utter ruin upon the business of the city, from which ten thousand people derive their support; that the operation of the bill "will prove seriously subversive to the tobacco-producing interests of the Dan river and the Piedment Valley"; that this act will inevitably drive the sale of the tobacco to precincts within the State of North Caroling, and cut off also from Danville the trade from tifteen counties of North Caroling, and cause a loss to Virginia of the revenne resulting therefrom; and that accordingly the Legislature is earnestly invoked to exclude the market of Danville from the provisions of the bill," and a committee be pointed to go immediately to Richmond and explain fully to the committee in charge of the bill the consequences of its enact-Mr. C. G. Holland, Mr. J. T. Stovall, and Captain Daniel Coleman were apsinted the committee.

About one hundred negroes were baptized yesterday into the membership of the First African Baptist church. I am told that there were about one hundred and ninety to be baptized, but the ceremony was interrupted by a shower of rain.

A Remarkable Metcor. Mossingford, Charlotte County, Va.,

March 26, 1877. Edilors Dispatch: A very large and brilant meteor was observed in this region last Saturday night. The writer was in the neighborhood of Providence, Halifax couniv. at Major Henry Carrington's, cleven illes southwest from my house. About 1 clock several of the family at Major Carrington's were awakened by a loud report, owed by reverberations and rathing of vindows, which, although there was something pecutiar in the sound, was mistaken for thunder. In the morning the matter was discussed, and it was concluded that it could not have been thunder, but possibly an explosion of gun-powder, or of nitroglycerine, or perhaps an earthquake. But returning home yesterday evening I earned that my bired man, Robert Stuart, who happened to be out at the time, was suddealy surprised by a brilliant light, brighter than of the full moon, indeed, as it seemed to him, almost like the light of the sun. Looking up he saw a large, bright object noving across the heavens in a direction, as hear as I could determine from careful inmry, of west to east, or somewhat north of st, perhaps, and at about the height of the North star. He saw no signs of any exsion. Moving off a few yards, as he tood in wonder and fear, he thinks about ten minutes (but of course it could hardly have been so long), a loud explosion was heard from the direction of east by north, followed by something like rolling thunder, which continued for some time.

I have not yet seen any one else who witssed the phenomenon, but we shall doubt ess hear from it through many others. The above is contributed to aid in gather-ing the data necessary to determine the probable size and distance of this remarkable meteor. It will be observed that the point in Halifax where the sound was so distinctly heard was in the opposite direction from that in which (at my house) the meteor H. A. BROWN. "Uncle Robert" described the meteor as being of the size of his double-tists-no diminutive object-tive or six inches in diameter at least. You may insert this esti-

The names of the parties are not made public by the police, but circumstances are stated thus; Early last week a gentlemanly-looking person topped at a leading hotel in Baltimore, and ring his stay advertised for a governess for his children. His advertisement was as a wealthy citizen of Albe needed a governess. The guardian of the young lady was perfectly satisfied with presentations, and made arrangements for his ward to accompany the advertiset to Alexandria. They arrived at Washgton last Friday evening, and the fellow told the unsuspecting lady that there was no get to Alexandria that night. Hek her to the National Hotel and engaged two adjoining rooms. M. Philadelshia express train. When the train stopped Baltimore he led her from the car, and, leaving her on the platform, jumped on the train as it moved on to Philadelphia. The lady at once went to her guardian's house and told him her sad story, whereupon he immediately communicated with be police department here and at Washington. The police at Philadelphia were also notified. The officers have a full description of the scoundrel, and no efforts will be spared to secure his arrest.

At the hotel in Washington the fellow registered under an assumed name, representng on the register the young lady to be his ster, and hailing from Richmond, Va. He old the hotel clerk that his sister was an invalid, and that he wanted a room near hers. The hotel-books show that Friday night he had numerous "extras" in his room, such as whiskey, ale, &c. The Cook on the Tangter Stabs a Deck-Hand to the Henrt. A desperate tragedy occurred on the steamer Tangler, at Snow Hill, Saturday evening last. Between one of the deckhands, Caleb Kellam, and the assistant cook, John Harding, ill-feeling had existed for some time. Kellam was said to have been of a turbulent disposition, though a good hand, and Harding had repeatedly warned him that if he did not let him alone he would "knife him." The occasion presented itself at about twenty minutes be fore 6 o'clock on the evening mentioned. A fresh difficulty arose between the men. who soon came to blows, and Harding getting the worst of it, ran to the kitchen. caught up a butcher-knife with blade six inches long and one inch wide, and rushing upon Kellam plunged the knife into his bosom. The victim barely gasped that he was "stabbed," and fell upon the deck. He did not live five minutes.

The murderer was promptly seized by the officers of the boat and handed over to Constable Thomas Porter, who lodged him safely in jail. Dr. Charles Jones, coroner of Snow Hill, summoned a jury of inquest, which rendered a verdict in accordance with the above facts. A brother of the deceased took charge of the remains and brought them to Onancock, whence they were transferred to his friends on Pungoteague creek,

In spite of idle threats to publish the Matthews-Foster agreement because the troops were not promptly withdrawn from the double-headed States, all efforts to obtain it has failed. In reply to a direct request to see it for publication, Messrs. They had been quite despondent-feeling, they say, that he had disappointed the hopes of his Conservative friends and yielded to the influence of those who seek to defeat the conciliatory policy pledged by his nearest party friends, and announced in his inaugural address. The conversation was marked with the frankness of that on former occasions, and of the same general tenor. They exhibited Nicholls Treasury recently as indicating cents. that the property-owners acknowledge Nicholls as their lawful Governor; and they represented to the President that they had information that Packard construed the order sent to General Augur last night as authorizing the arrest of the Nicholls police.

If the conference between the rival Executive claimants does not result in the unconditional abdication of Chamberlain, Hampton proposes to have him ejected under existing State laws, and all he will ask is that the United States allow the civil process of the courts to be served upon THE MATTHEWS-FOSTER LETTERS-LOUISIANA.

The southern gentlemen who have the letters of Matthews and Foster decline to take any steps towards their publication unless the request comes directly from the writers of the letters. They consider that a request from them for consent to publish them might embarrass the gentlemen most interested.

It appears that Packard understood that the order given to General Augur yesterday involved the restoration of the status quo at the time of the inauguration.

The proceedings to-day comprise a letter from the Louisiana delegation to Governor Nicholls, submitted to the President and Secretary of War, in which Governor Nicholls is informed that the order to General Augur was for the purpose of obtaining information, and involves no action on his part in the way of undoing anything that has been done since the inauguration.

The Eastern Question.

The Negotiations with England and Andrews Sta.

London, March 27.—Ignatieff is reported as affecting a conviction that the negotiations with England are interrupted, and that there only exists a slight misunder standing; yet he expresses himself with much bitterness at what he styles the prejudices and the false tradition of the policy of Great Britain. The conference cannot end in smoke, he says. The sole question is whether its decisions are to be enforced by Europe or Russia alone. Russia, he insists, has made immense sacrifices by mobilizing, and she cannot demobilize without getting something in return—were it only to satisfy public opinion. The correspondent continued: But, I observed, you yourselves form public opinions in Russia. "Ca cest notr a faire," he replied that Russia would not accept that city were it offered to her on a golden dish. Russia knows exactly what the English fleet can do, and how far pecuniary aid can help Turkey. All this has been duly considered, and the Czar would sooner go! can help Turkey. All this has been duly considered, and the Czar would sooner go to war than endure taunts from Turkey. He has not demanded Austria's intervention because it is not required.

He declines to be responsible for the recent negotiations, which, he says, were conducted by the Russian embassy in London. Pointing to a copy of the protocol which was lying on the table full of erasures and corrections, he exclaimed, "That anodyne document might avert war if England would only understand that her ton Life, 100 par, 100 bid. interests are identical with ours, and not with those of Turkey."

What the General said to me is so thoroughly in opposition to what reaches me from other sources at least equally trustworthy that I will confine myself to this brief account, which undoubtedly has its importance.

THE SITUATION REVIEWED BY THE LONDON TIMES. LONDON, March 27 .- The Times, in a leader reviewing the situation, says: "When we see how our Government loes nothing, promises nothing, and exhibits only distrust and condemnation of Russia by restricting itself to the faintest phraseology in which an agreement can be couched, we cannot wonder that negotiations are interrupted. The fact is that though according to the formalities of diplomacy England and Russia have been all along combined for a common purpose, the two countries have gradually assumed such a position of antagonism that they are regarded on the continent as two rivals in a great controversy which may possibly de-

"In Russia the notion prevails that the It appears that Packard claimed that his Turks are incited against Russia by English animosity, and in England the people believe that Russia threatens certain of our interests from retaliative impulses or a settled policy. It may be too late to change these feelings. We know the situation of Russia, and on our side the resolutions and demeanor of the government are fixed for a period before the end, from which all will be decided. It is no less recretable that be decided. It is no less regrettable that the two governments seem incapable of ar- RICHMOND TOBACCO EXCHANGE. riving at an understanding, and have now, as far as we can see, no point of view in common.

"The result must be to make the preservation of peace by means of an European agreement almost impossible. If Russia has independent reason of her own for peace, there may be no war; but ministers and ambassadors are now at the end of their suggestions-at least this is the case with the representatives of Russia and England. The consequence of this is that those who do not despair turn to the continental Powers as capable possibly of some mediation. The eyes of Europe now turn once more to the members of the Triple Alliance. Austria, from her geographical situation, has the preponderating influence in the Eastern question, and the nearer the prospect of war the more important does her part become. "During the first days of the insurrection Austria might have produced pacification, by a week's energetic action. That time is now past. Austrian occupation of Bosnia and Herzegovina would certainly not produce peace, but would sanction the invasion of Turkey by a Russian army. If there is war there must be a great war, and gregational church, and about fifteen other any Power that interferes must be prepared to wage a great war also. Though Austria might by unity of purpose and resolution act energetically, and take the decision into her hands, it is almost certain she will leave the Prussian Government to take its course, reserving to herself future liberty of action occording to circumstances.

"The controlling forces in a possible war will largely proceed from neighboring empires, and in this sense the belief at St. Petersburgh is that through the failure of an European understanding the Imperial Alliance comes to the foreground, and has a certain justification."
